Areas in Dysart and Skyvalley and the surrounding areas have been marked as suitable for wind farms based simply on height above sea-level and wind speed. • There is no plan in place for the decommissioning of the wind farms, which will inevitably occur in 15 to 20 years. There has been no consideration for how the “dead” turbines will be removed, and where the vast amounts of steel and fibreglass will go. ◦ With reference to Figure 7 in Renewable Energy Strategy - “Areas Suitable for Wind Development Draft”: This map does not recognise the council’s own identification of this karst landscape as being of national importance.
